

A PATENT IS SET TO BE GRANTED BY THE AUSTRALIAN PATENT OFFICE FOR AMPLICON AB'S NICOTINE INHALATION TECHNOLOGY

Emplicure AB (publ) today announces that a patent is set to be granted by the Australian Patent Office for Amplicon's nicotine inhalation technology.

The Australian Patent Office has confirmed its intention to grant the patent application for inhalation of nicotine, application No 2017227071. This means the review and examination phase has passed and all terms are fulfilled. The patent is expected to be granted within the next months, and then into 2038.

"The granted patent solidifies the strength in Amplicon's proprietary bioceramic technology platforms and our potential for developing new unique nicotine products." says Tomas Hammargren, Chairman of the Board, Amplicon AB.
