Acconeer signs a distribution agreement with Japanese Restar Electronics

The radar technology company Acconeer AB has signed a distribution agreement with Restar Electronics Corporation, a leading distributor in Japan with especially strong coverage of companies in the consumer electronics segment. Initially, the agreement includes Pulsed Coherent Radar sensor A1 product and the evaluation kits and covers the Japanese market.

Lars Lindell, CEO of Acconeer, comments: “We have been working together with Restar Electronics Corporation for some time now, and they have already ordered sensors from us as we announced in May. It is with great pleasure that we now can formalize our cooperation further with a distribution agreement. Japan is an important market in our rollout strategy and Restar will be a great partner for us going forward.”

Hiroshi Yajima, President of Restar Electronics Corporation, comments: “We have worked with Acconeer for some time now, and as our order in May indicates we have seen very strong interest from our customers in their unique radar sensor. Restar Electronics Corporation serve many of the large consumer electronic corporations active on the Japanese market and we believe that Acconeer's potentially disruptive sensor will attract many of them going forward. It is with great anticipation we look forward to what this cooperation will lead to.”
