Acconeer has delivered more than one million radar sensors

As of today, Acconeer has shipped more than one million A111 pulsed coherent radar sensors in total since the company started selling Evaluation Kits (EVKs) in February 2018.

Lars Lindell, CEO Acconeer, comments: "Today we ship our millionth radar sensor since we started selling it online, which is a great milestone to celebrate. This proves that we can deliver on our commitment and that we now have a good customer base buying our sensor in high volumes. Now we are looking to increase the rate we sell at even further to soon pass two million sensors."

In February 2020, 24 months after sales start, Acconeer reached 100 000 sensors sold. Seven months later that number was doubled, and the company passed 200 000 sold sensors. To go from 200 000 to half a million took less than a year, and now ten months later the number has doubled again and the mark of one million sold sensors is passed. Since 2021, Acconeer reports accumulated sales in financial reports, by the end of Q1 2022 the company had sold in total 860 000 radar sensors.
