Partnership Global Expansion

Safestate Group AB (publ): SafeState Signs Global Agreement with Its Largest Telecom Partner

After proving the model in the Nordics, the two companies will now work together to bring Dark Web Monitoring to many new countries, reaching millions of subscribers.

Stockholm, Sweden, August 10, 2026. SafeState Group AB (publ) has signed a global agreement with its largest telecom reseller, one of the biggest telecom brands in the world. The agreement makes SafeState's Dark Web Monitoring available across the partner's operations internationally, and the two companies will now work together market by market to bring it to customers in many new countries.

In the Nordics, SafeState's Dark Web Monitoring became a standard part of the offering for the vast majority of new subscribers. The results are the reason this agreement exists.

Every operating market in the group can now offer the product to its customers. More than the reach, it is a statement of trust in SafeState's technology, its team, and its ability to deliver identity monitoring at scale.

SafeState's Dark Web Monitoring is built on one of the largest breach databases in the world, sourced by SafeState's own breach data team and combined with underground forums, leak repositories, and compromised credential networks. Every new subscriber gets a full historical scan at onboarding, so they start out knowing what is already exposed, and from there they're alerted in real time whenever their data surfaces, before criminals can act on it.

Daan Donders, CEO of SafeState: "We proved the model together in the Nordics, and the group has now opened the door to every market it operates in. That is the strongest signal a partner can give you, and for SafeState this expansion is a game changer."

Digital safety works best when it comes as standard. SafeState and its partner are taking that principle into many more countries.
